EXHIBIT A – SCOPE OF WORK AND FEES

1. Introduction

The National Laboratories Office (NLO) of the Texas A&M University System (TAMUS) will contract with Sawtooth Simulation, LLC, to provide an individual to serve as software developer for the open-source Sn code, openSn. This code is slated for use in exercises associated with neutronics and stochastic neutronics courses being developed by academics of the Joint Center for Resilient National Security (JCRNS) for new staff employees at LANL. In addition, this code is being used in a JCRNS project relating to Neutron-Diagnosed Sub-Critical Experiments (NDSE) and is expected to see increasing use by LANL staff for programmatic purposes in the foreseeable future. LANL is currently funding a staff member to develop new capabilities in openSn for NDSE applications.

2. Scope

Dr. David Andrs will serve as the openSn developer associated with this contract. He is an employee of Sawtooth Simulation, LLC with extensive experience in high performance computing (HPC), massively parallel programming, and massively-parallel code architecture design. He was a major developer of the MOOSE code at INL before taking a position at Sawtooth Simulation LLC. His combination of skills, which is ideal for improving the high-level structure of openSn, is quite rare.

As the primary developer of the high-level structure of openSn, Dr. Andrs will collaborate as required with other primary developers of openSn. Primary openSn developers are designated by Professors Jean Ragusa and Jim Morel, who manage the overall openSn project. Dr. Andrs will be primarily supervised by Dr. Ragusa. It is expected that Dr. Andrs will engage in the development of a new high-level structure for openSn. He is not expected to develop new numerical methods or engage in openSn applications. The work performed by Dr. Andrs is expected to be performed remotely, but he is expected to occasionally visit TAMU as required for coordination of his activities.

3. Effort/Rate

The annual effort expended by Dr. Andrs in fulfillment of this contract will correspond to one-half FTE or 1040 hours per year. The fully burdened rate for services is $110/hr.

4. Travel

Annual funding of $4000 will be allocated for travel to Texas A&M by Dr. Andrs. JCRNS management will request travel when deemed necessary, with two one-week trips per year are anticipated.

5. Deliverables

Annual reports describing the contributions by Dr. Andrs over the year will be due on December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2025 respectively. These reports are expected to be written at a high level without a great deal of technical detail.
